I work on explainable artificial intelligence. My methods map what a deep network has learned onto the features that clinicians and engineers already use, as a transition matrix between the two feature spaces, so that its decisions can be checked and audited. I validate them against expert judgement in cardiac MRI, ECG and chest radiography, and apply them to UAV inspection of wind and solar plants and to urban traffic control. I am a Researcher in the Khmelnytskyi traffic pilot of the Horizon Europe project U_CAN at Khmelnytskyi National University, and a full-time doctoral candidate for the Doctor of Science degree.

Research interests

Explainable AI	Transition matrices between a model's feature space and an expert's, extended with Lie-group equivariance, rough-set production rules and conflict-aware auditing.
Medical AI	Explanations for ECG, cardiac MRI and chest radiographs, evaluated against clinical expert judgement.
Energy and UAV inspection	Detection and criticality assessment of defects in wind turbines and photovoltaic plants from UAV imagery.
Smart mobility	Reinforcement-learning signal control and traffic-pattern recognition for urban mobility.
